Short bio (60 words)

Iva Kozul is a business coach and strategic consultant based in Austria. After two master's degrees (Engineering + Business) and more than ten years of strategic consulting for corporations, she now builds several companies in parallel — consulting, coaching, investments. Her topic: business growth runs on decisions. She helps business owners who are capable but stuck decide from clarity and calm — no hustle, no burnout.

Long bio (120 words)

Iva was on her way to a corporate CEO job — and realised she didn't want it. That decision became the core of her work. Today she runs several companies at once, not because she has more hours than others, but because she decides faster. With two master's degrees (Engineering + Business), over ten years of strategic consulting and more than a hundred clients, she combines strategic precision with work on the person who makes the decisions. She calls it feminine leadership: clarity without harshness, ambition without hustle — for women and men. Her method is measurable: every client answers the same 15 questions before and after working with her. On stage, Iva speaks about decision speed, leadership in the AI era and growth you don't pay for with exhaustion.
